

AFTER the trials and tribulations of Tuesday night's drawn game at Enfield, Wycombe Wanderers should find fewer problems tomorrow (Saturday) when they make their longest trip of the season to visit Bromley in the Rothmans Isthmian League Division One.

The draw at Southbury Road, when Enfield equalised in the third minute of injury time, puts the leaders 11 points ahead of Wycombe who have a game in hand. Wanderers' chances of retaining their title look slim at the present time but they must keep plugging away with their remaining fixtures. Enfield have some difficult matches remaining this term and Wanderers will be out to capitalise on any slip. They must keep a careful eye on Dagenham, too. Tuesday's result was perfect for the Essex club, who are two points behind Wycombe with a game in hand.

Of the three clubs in action tomorrow, Wanderers have the easiest fixture with their match at Bromley. Enfield are away to Woking and Dagenham visit Hayes.

Bromley have been firmly entrenched at the bottom of Division One all season. They have won only six of their 35 matches this term, conceding 87 goals. But the Kent club's form on the field has not been their only problem.

Two managers have come and gone this season and the present boss, Len Wager, has recently been struggling with a string of injuries amongst his players. In the last three weeks goalkeeper John Macrae, who had a fine debut in Bromley's victory over Walton and Hersham recently, broke two of his fingers. Before that first choice 'keeper Derek Honor broke his arm and then midfield player Ian Grant cracked his collar bone.

Young goalkeeper Derek Paske was drafted into the side for his debut at Ilford on Tuesday but was beaten six times. Manager Wager is hoping to find a replacement before Saturday but Paske will play if necessary.

All in all, Bromley have used over 50 players and only three remain from the squad that started the season.

Wanderers should be able to field their full strength side and there is a possibility that Paul Birdseye will return to the team following his knee injury.
